TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

Re: Enviro Tab

I was introduced to sample a card of Enviro Tab Fuel Conditioner tablets some 3 months ago.

I currently operate a small fleet of vehicles at Paparoa, Northland, and have been in the transport industry for 38 years and during that time of driving, servicing and operating a small fleet (of around 12 vehicles) one gets to know what is real and what is not. I have tried many "additives" over the years.

When Ian Chase of Warkworth told me that Enviro Tab would solve a "smoky" vehicle issue I became interested because I have one such vehicle, and despite a complete over-hall and recondition of injector pump, injectors etc, it still emits an undue amount of particulate - not anymore! What we have now is an "acceptable" amount of particulate coming from the exhaust.

I tried the Enviro Tab on all my other vehicles, even the two stroke Victa mower and my boat. The results are amazing – not only do we get a cost effective fuel saving but on all engines we get the following:

1. An increase in torque – especially the diesels
2. A smoother and quieter running engine
3. On two strokes no blue smoke or two stroke smell and easier starting
4. A decrease in particulate from the exhaust

Details of experience on Enviro Tab:

Vehicle 1997 Nissan Coach FE6T engine - 292000kms
Fuel saving 10 – 12%

Vehicle 1998 Hino Coach 6.5L – NA engine - 304000kms
Fuel saving 10 – 12%

Vehicle 1996 Toyota Prado KZ 3L Turbo engine - 167000kms
Fuel saving 10 – 12%

Vehicle 1993 Toyota Hiace 2.8L NA engine - 441000kms
Fuel saving 10 – 12%

Vehicle 2002 Toyota Hiace 3L NA engine - 131000kms
Fuel saving 10 – 12%

Vehicle 1993 Mazda 626 2L petrol engine - 326000kms
Fuel saving 12 – 15%

Vehicle 2008 Toyota Corolla 1.8L petrol engine - 26000kms
Fuel saving 10%

Vehicle Boat Smuggler 7.2 ultra deep V hull, 2007 E-Tec Evinrude 225 hp
After 1 full tank on Enviro Tab the indicative fuel saving is around 20%, this is inconclusive as I believe a further testing over another 10 to 15 hours running is required for a definitive result.

After the above experiences I became an Enviro Tab distributor and I'm willing to discuss the above results with anyone wishing to know anything further about this truly effective product.
